When suffering a heart attack, seconds count.

That's why Advent Consumer Healthcare, LLC, has developed a way to fight heart disease that fits in the palm of your hand, preventing you from having to open bottles or dig around in medicine cabinets. In August, the company rolled out the At Heart emergency aspirin dispenser, available in CVS pharmacies for under $5, to help fight heart disease. The dispenser is only three inches, making it the perfect size to attach to a keychain or slip into a purse, making the two blister-sealed 325 mg aspirin tablets easy to access.

At the first onset of heart attack symptoms, the American Heart Association recommends calling 911 and chewing on a regular strength aspirin tablet. When that aspirin tablet is readily available via the At Heart dispenser, a life could be saved. For more information about At Heart, visit at-heart.com.
